Dear Mo:

I note with pleasure that you are going to have a gathering of your people with Berkeley Elliott and the Oklahoma City group.

I am as confident as you are that some day old Urantia will be a wonderful world. Jesus at various times, according to the Urantia Book, told his followers that "some day the message which I declare to you will rule this very world," so we have his assurance that this is true.

I am also very concerned about the stories that get out about the origin of the book. When people ask us our reply is that all we know about the origin of the book is given in the book itself. I have heard many wierd stores, but none that is true, because those of us connected with the printing of the book have taken an oath not to reveal what, if anything, we know.

Yes, we do expect to have a Study Session this summer, but since our space is so very limited, we are inviting members of the Urantia Brotherhood only, with a very few exceptions <sup>only</sup> outsiders considered. Some day when we are able to rent larger quarters, which I hope will not be too far in the future, we will be able to be more generous in our invitations. Official invitations will be sent out in a couple of weeks. Dates have been tentatively set for July 21 and 22.

Sincerely,

E. L. Christensen
