

Thursday afternoon

Dear Meredith,

I certainly enjoyed seeing you and your family again. Thank you for a wonderful lunch and for the tomatoes and cantaloupes. Those sun-ripened ones are so much tastier than those you get in the stores.

You helped me a lot, Meredith; I needed some spiritual nourishment of some kind, and I came away refreshed. Things have been too much with me recently. The book you gave me is excellent and I have scarcely left off reading it since I came home.

I want to thank you again for taking a paper on October 20th; that is for me and the entire Society. You will have a full house. Your comments as well as those of your wife gave fresh impetus to my changing ideas of our methods of conducting the Sunday meeting. I want this to be an interesting year for the entire membership.

I shall spend the rest of my vacation trying to restore my equilibrium and next Tuesday I hope to make a fresh start in this matter of treading the path of the saints. Tough road, I know now with greater clarity and also determination.

Sincerely your friend,
