

THE CALL OF THE SPIRIT

Merritt Horn

To know but not see,
yet to act upon what is known rather than upon what is seen,
This is the way of faith—
wherein what is seen shall fade,
but what is known shall one day be seen.

The Call Of The Spirit

Merritt Horn

Archangel Publishing
Lafayette, Colorado

The Call
Of The Spirit

The Call of the Spirit. Copyright © 1984 by Merritt C. Horn. All rights reserved.
Printed in the United States of America.

Portions of this work may be reproduced only in accordance with the fair use provisions of the Copyright Act of 1976. Permission for any other use must be obtained in writing from the publisher. Inquiries should be directed to Archangel Publishing, P.O. Box 1077, Lafayette, Colorado 80026.

Cover by Terry Kruger.
Type set by Graphic Directions, Inc., Boulder, Colorado.
Printed by Johnson Publishing Co., Boulder, Colorado.

First Printing

To the Son of Man, the Son of God

CONTENTS

Contents

An Offering	xi
I The Call	3
II The Journey	19
III The Messenger	51
IV The Mission	57

$5.95

THE CALL OF THE SPIRIT

Who told you that my revelation had ended?
that having spoken
I would speak no more?

I tell you that I shall speak to my children as they have need of me.
I shall not withhold my spirit
from any of them,
For I hear their cry
and I shall answer.

It is good that you search
the records for my message,
But you should not think that I speak from them only,
For my spirit lives within you and I speak to you always.

You know this in your heart.
Listen then, to the spirit.

* *

Let go of your small illusions;
reach for the greater realities.

Archangel Publishing