SOME GOOD ADVICE BY DR. LENA SADLER

These are days when our boys and girls need more mothering and more fathering.

The time the boys and girls need most attention is between the ages of two and six years.

Wednesday afternoon's program in the Chautauqua pavilion was one of the most delightful that has been offered during the week. There were three distinct features each of which was especially fine, and each was highly enjoyed by the large audience. The program was opened with a concert by the Schumann Male quartet and was followed by a lecture by Dr. William Sadler, the last feature of the afternoon being the lecture by Dr. Lena Sadler.

Dr. William Sadler gave his lecture on "Americanitis". This was the last appearance before a Chautauqua audience in Marion this season. Sadler's lectures have been very favorites during their appearances here, and the lecture of Dr. Sadler was by no means an exception to the rule. The lecture dealt principally with blood pressure and the many conditions produced by high blood pressure. During the lecture blood pressure tests were made of about 100 persons, many of which tests were made before the audience. The object of the lecture was in preventing these tests made the people realize the seriousness of the ailment was feel for themselves the danger of normal. Dr. Sadler explained the tests as follows:

Term "Americanitis."

"Americanitis" is a term which has been used to cover a large mental and physical habit. Any person over forty years old who becomes addicted to any of these habits which I will name. I would like to know your blood pressure. Then I would like to have you live as you will then able to arrive at a definite conclusion as to your condition.

Reason the American gets so much English consin is because he is a slave on his arm is always anxious to speed as to almost burst.

THURSDAY'S PROGRAM.

9:30 a. m.—Lecture.

10:45 a. m.—Nature lecture by Superintendent Gilbert.

2:30 p. m.—Maud Willis, interpreting "Everywoman."

3:30 p. m.—The International Opera company, in operatic selections.

7:15 p. m.—The International Opera company in selections from modern popular operas.

8:30 p. m.—Lecture by Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh, of Chicago.

"Nervous prostration is the kindest thing mother nature ever put on the American people, but you will never die from it. If you have mental prostration you are not liable to die from the fright. Man can break more laws of nature and get away with it than any animal I know of.

We have every germ disease mankind and fairly well under control and it is only a matter of time until they will be eliminated. Tuberculosis is decreasing, and today is exceeded in the death rate by pneumonia. While we are winning in the germ-caused diseases, we are losing out in the habit-formed diseases.

"I do not preach the simple life, but I believe that the strenuous life with simple living drugs as the cure disease and only change the location, being only of temporary aid, as nature effects the cure. Cocaine is the shortest known route to the insane asylum, and raises the blood pressure. Bromide morphine lowers the blood pressure. Tobacco is in no other drug that raises the blood pressure.

Effects of Alcohol.

"Alcohol lowers the pressure, and we doctors have discovered that it is a deceiver all the time. Family troubles are caused by drink, and so it would seem if there were a fashionable saloon, with a side door.

THE INTERNATIONAL OPERATIC COMPANY.

SOME EMINENT ARTISTS MAKE UP THE INTERNATIONAL OPERA COMPANY

The International Opera company which will present operatic selections at the Chautauqua tomorrow afternoon is composed of the following eminent artists:

TEKLA FARM, late prima donna soprano with Mme. Schumann-Heink in "Love's Lottery," has gained distinction in opera, oratorio and concert work. She sings in English, Swedish, German and Italian. As an associate of the great Schumann-Heink this artist proved her ability and established herself in the musical world.

ROSE HEIDENREICH has attracted the attention of musical critics during several seasons of pronounced success. Her most recent triumph was with the National Grand Opera company, which filled a long season at a prominent Chicago theater. Miss Heidenreich sings in English, German and other languages.

LORO GOOCH, tenor, has been prominently identified with important operatic productions in Chicago and elsewhere and has won exceptional encomiums with each appearance. His voice is of the brilliant, robusto quality and he sings with the ease and finish of the true artist.

BURT M'KINNIE has a voice of beautiful natural quality. It is a true, rich, vibrant baritone of stalwart proportions. There is in his art the blood of real feeling, a profound knowledge of warming the receptive faculties of every audience. He was a leading baritone for years in Savage's English Grand Opera company and was a valued member of that splendid organization.

MARGARET DAY, as an accompanist, is all that could be desired. She is sympathetic and artistic to a marked degree and gives to the singer just the support needed to secure the best results. As a soloist her work is of exceptional merit. She studied with the famous Godowsky, of Berlin.

WILL INTERPRET THE PLAY, "EVERYWOMAN"

Miss Willis, who will interpret "Everywoman" at the Chautauqua tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, is a young woman of most striking personal appearance. Slender and graceful with all the vivacity and magnetism of youth, she makes a most beautiful, winsome and attractive figure on the platform. You are charmed with her personality. You laugh with her at some little episode of life's sunshine—your nerves grow tense at some related tragedy—your eyes grow dim with tears at some little tender touch of sentiment.

Indeed, to listen to her as she performs the recitation of artistic skill. Her well-modulated voice and excellent enunciation, her every gesture and each little detail upon which the art of reading depends are perfectly harmonized. Never is there apparent the sense of affectation; indeed, Miss Willis' charming simplicity of rendition is refreshing as it is unusual.

Each character, as she reads, seems to step out of the mystery and stand before you a living, breathing human being. She creates them as easily and as gracefully and with such a touch of real deep human understanding that the miracle of actual personification seems to be accomplished.

SCHUMANN QUINTET GIVES A FINE CONCERT

Members of Company Are Finished Artists.

The concert given by the Schumann quintet was one of the best in orchestral music that has been heard in Marion in a long time. The members of the company are finished artists. Four were members of the famous Thomas orchestra, which, by itself is the record recommendation that is needed.

The program was opened with a number of selections from the "Spring Song" by Mendelssohn. This number never fails to delight any audience, and the interpretations of the different parts of this famous opera was little short of marvelous and was received with greatest enthusiasm on the part of the audience.

According to a statement of the director of the quintet, American music is at last coming into its own, and this organization in its travels during the past season has been trying to spread the fame of American music both at home and abroad. One of the most noted of American composers is Schumann-Heink. This was the number rendered in a most delightful manner.

The next selection was "The Spring Song," by Mendelssohn, which was most pleasing. Music if not an expression of some of life has little charm, and the rendition of the next selection, "Second Rhapsody," by List, also demonstrated the ability of the company to interpret the work of that famous composer.

Selections from "Il Trovatore," "Annie Laurie" and "Old Folks at Home" were also rendered in a most pleasing manner.

The next selection was "The Sapphella Are Coming," "Comin' Through the Rye," "Annie Laurie" and "Auld Lang Syne." The work in each of the work of the is offended and plots his downfall. The fifth scene is in the home of Marcus where he has had Marcia taken. She tries to force her love on him, but she asks protection of her God and when he sees the cross she takes from her dress his love turns to disgust. The sixth scene is the audience chamber of Nero, when Marcus comes pleading the life of Marcia to Nero who tells him of the life of the Christians and he tells him he will publicly renounce her faith. The last scene is laid in the dungeon of the amphitheater where Marcus is to renounce her faith and declares his love. She tells him of her love, but refuses to renounce her faith. Marcus is converted and sends the word to Nero, both going to their deaths together.

Old Place Cards.

Some interesting place cards are little telegrams. The envelope is white, printed in blue, and the words on the envelope have more to say regarding delivery than the wording of it. The name of the guest, naturally, is to be written on the outside of the envelope. Two dozen of these telegrams, in a box are sold for 75 cents. Little letters are also sold for place cards. The envelopes have in a slip of transparent paper through the center, like the envelopes used by some business firms, and the name written on a card within the envelope, shows through the transparent paper. A riddle printed on the card also shows through the paper and the answer to the riddle is printed at the top of the card, to be read when it is taken from the envelope. In the upper left hand top of the envelope are the words, "Stay at home with the house," and the stamp is formed of the words, "Eat, drink and be merry," printed in red.

MISS WILMER APPEARS AT BEST

Shows Her Great Dramatic Ability.

BEAUTIFUL STORY OF "SIGN OF THE CROSS"

A Drama Drawn from Days of Nero.

Miss Wilmer Presents the Story of Love and Christian Faith of the Roman Maiden, Marcia, and Her Lover, Marcus—The Picture Is Complete in Every Detail as It Is Given.

In "The Sign of the Cross" Miss Mildred Wilmer was at her best last night. She is a reader of wonderful dramatic ability and without a doubt one of the best which has ever appeared before a Marion audience. Her program Monday afternoon was splendid, but last night she had an opportunity to show her full powers, giving this story of the persecution of the Christians by Nero in a manner that almost carried one back to those revolting times of the Roman arena.

Miss Wilmer needs but a platform on the stage in a long drawing white robe of the time in which the scene was laid, and was greeted with cheers from the great audience which filled the big auditorium and even the circus seats on the outside of the pavilion.

The Sign of the Cross.

Miss Wilmer gave a short description of the book from which her reading was taken. She said: "The story of "The Sign of the Cross" was written by Wilson Barrett, who drew his story from the persecution of the Christians during the nineteen years after the crucifixion of Christ and about the time of the burning of Rome, while Nero was playing his fiddle on the Caesars. It is conceded by critics to be the greatest Christian drama ever written.

"Today people worship where and when they will, and we do not realize the awful price that has been paid for this privilege," said Miss Wilmer. "Many of the early Christians paid with their lives for declaring themselves Christians."

The story opens in the Christian maiden named Marcia, who will not renounce her faith, and her pagan lover, Marcus, prefect of Rome, who tries to persuade her to give up her faith when Nero, the Roman emperor, orders her to be thrown with the other Christians into the arena, and failing in this becomes interested in her faith and finally accepts the Christ.

A Beautiful Drama.

The drama is in seven scenes. The first is a street scene in Rome when Marcia appears and by her beauty arouses his admiration and love. The second scene takes place in the home of Marcia's father when Marcus becomes and warns the family that Nero has asked for the lives of the Christians and tries to persuade the family to renounce their faith. The third scene is in the prison of the district where the boy companion of Marcia is persecuted because he refuses to join the hiding places of the Christians. He is rescued by Marcus. The fourth scene is in the home of Marcus' parents' favorite, the wealthy lead lady in Rome. She tells Marcus of her love and when he tells her he is engaged to Marcia makes the girl jealous of her rival. The fifth scene is in the home of Marcus where he has had Marcia taken. She tries to force her love on him, but she asks protection of her God and when he sees the cross she takes from her dress his love turns to disgust. The sixth scene is the audience chamber of Nero, when Marcus comes pleading the life of Marcia to Nero who tells him of the life of the Christians and he tells him he will publicly renounce her faith. The last scene is laid in the dungeon of the amphitheater where Marcus is to renounce her faith and declares his love. She tells him of her love, but refuses to renounce her faith. Marcus is converted and sends the word to Nero, both going to their deaths together.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE SPEAKER WHO WILL ADDRESS CHAUTAUQUA THURSDAY EVENING

One of the most timely, forceful and eloquent lectures of the year is being delivered by Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh. Mr. Kavanagh is judge of the Superior court, Chicago, and is famous in many parts of the United States for the reforms for which he stands in court procedure and law enforcement. In the recent meeting of 500 lawyers in Chicago, at which definite steps were taken toward reforms in legal procedure, he was one of the principal speakers and leaders. The metropolitan papers have given entire pages to a description of him and his work.

During the months of June and July, Judge Kavanagh speaks at Chautauquas. Everywhere he is received with enthusiasm and the message which he delivers is conceded to be one of great importance.

Three years since Judge Kavanagh was sent to England as representative of the industrial club, of Chicago, to study conditions along lines of legal procedure.

Judge Kavanagh is advocating a movement to obtain an amendment of the laws of legal procedure so as to simplify them and make them more direct and effective, and secondly to strive to encourage the enforcement of the law as it exists. Behind this movement he hopes to see enlisted the sympathy and cooperation of the great body of lawyers. This can be accomplished by the sympathy and effort of the general public.

The public everywhere is just beginning to awaken to the importance of needed reforms along these lines.

HITS AND MISSES AT CHAUTAUQUA

The party of young ladies from La Rue camping on the grounds enjoyed a marshmallow toast last night.

Superintendent Gilbert last night stated that the officers had requested him to announce that the hikes on the grounds would be turned off at 10:30 o'clock each night. They would remain off a few minutes and then be turned on again. This would be required three times by a signal for the people to leave the grounds and those remaining to go to their tents. A number of complaints had been made that sleepers became some of the lights had been left burning the previous night. Superintendent Gilbert said did not know until after 10:15 o'clock and complaint was made to President R. T. Lewis as to turning off the lights at a certain hour and they remained burning until about 11 o'clock.

Superintendent Gilbert announced last night that the Rev. Ralph Parlette, of the Redpath bureau, who is giving a series of lectures at the Bellefontaine Chautauqua, would be here at least one day. Mr. Parlette is the lecture hour at 9:30 o'clock caused by the failure of Governor Ferris to keep his appointment. Mr. Parlette will speak the morning period for Thursday and Friday in case Governor Ferris is unable to reach there. According to the routine to keep his afternoon engagements.

The association is still hopeful of securing Governor Ferris for at least one day. Adair comes from Charleston, Illinois.

Several complaints have been made to the superintendent about people standing on the railroad fences. Mr. Gilbert asked those who did not enjoy the program or were tired and weary to go home. This is also applies instead of annoying those about them by visiting with their neighbors.

The Chautauqua board held a meeting in the basement last night at 7 o'clock, and took up a few matters pertaining to the program. They decided to get some speakers from the Bellefontaine Chautauqua to take the place of Governor Ferris and were fortunate in securing Hon. Charles H. Dietz, who will give a series of lectures at Bellefontaine for this morning, and Thursday and Friday mornings provided Governor Ferris does not get here on any of these days. They also decided to open the seat sale for reserved seats for the Ben Greet entertainments, at 9 o'clock this morning. No seats outside of the pavilion will be reserved. The circus seats are provided for the accommodation of the crowds today and next Sunday will seat about 500 extra people.

THE SCHUMANN QUINTET PLEASES

Fine Program Is Given Tuesday Evening.

A LARGE AUDIENCE ENJOYS THE MUSIC

People Forget the Heat in the Pleasure Given.

Much of the Music Is Drawn from a Century Back—Many of World's Greatest Composers Are Represented in the Program, Which Is Extraordinary, Indeed—A Review of the Program.

One of the largest crowds yet assembled on the Chautauqua grounds heard the fine program which was rendered last night. The weather was warm, but no enjoyable warm was removed that no one thought of the heat.

The Schumann quintet which put on an excellent program earlier in the day, again favored the audience in the evening. Last night, the music was mostly that of a century ago and the members were dressed in the costume of that period, powdered wigs, velvet breeches, satin coats and lace. The program consisted of compositions of some of the world's greatest composers, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Schubert, Wagner and Schumann, and so wonderful was the music that the audience seemed inspired.

Great Cello Solo.

The first number was "The Wedding March" by Mendelssohn and was followed by a selection by Mozart, "Marriage of Duguerre," both of which were very much enjoyed. After two delightful German dances, the violin solo was rendered, the famous "Minuet in G," which was one of the most able renditions of the musicians, and repeated in response to a long continued outburst of applause. Another fine number was a cello solo, a gavotte by Mozart, Mr. Zedeler, the cellist so pleased the audience that it brought him back for another number in which he was assisted by the quintet in Schubert's "Serenade."

A collection of folk songs which center about the people of Vienna were familiar to many of the people in the congregation. "Der Mir" was another fine number and was pleasing.

For its closing number on the program, the quintet rendered "Tannhauser" by Wagner," from the composer after which it takes its name. So continuous was the applause, so unwilling was the audience to let the instrumentalists go, that they gave a combined number by request, the "Pilgrims Chorus" and "Evening Star," from Wagner's "Tannhauser." It was an exceptionally fine performance.

Banana Pudding.

Put one pint of milk over the fire in a custard kettle. Cut two eggs with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, into which has been mixed a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Stir the mixture into the boiling milk and when it thickens remove from the fire and add the juice of half a lemon. Cut stale cake and line a pudding dish with the slices. Cover the cake with bananas sliced thin and over this pour a cupful of the custard. Then add another layer of cake and banana and over all pour the remainder of the custard. Set on ice and chill. Just before serving cover with a cupful of whipped cream.

"Ralston's" only at Beatty & Longe.
