You'll Be Tagged Tomorrow for Big Children's Charity

By Hazel Whitaker.

Every loyal Chicago citizen would realize the full import of these words: "The men and women of tomorrow are the children of today." The contributions to the annual Tag day of the Children's Benefit League would tomorrow prove unprecedented. For it is entirely through the receipt of this tag, which was an original idea with the league, that it has been possible for this organization to grow in eight years from a group including but five charities to one of thirty-six, with many of these entirely dependent upon Tag day for their continuance.

These charities now practically represent a chain, taking the child from infancy through the nursery, the children's wards of the hospitals, and the orphanages, and in every instance trying to help the child morally, mentally, and physically. In other words, the child is the unit for which the league exists and works.

The league is in every way non-sectarian and has the support of all the clergy in the city. Strict rules govern the actions of the taggers, no girl under 16 is being allowed to act in this capacity, and each group of the younger women being chaperoned by an older woman.

The entire city is divided into sections by incantations committee, of which Miss Alice A. Fudge is chairman. These are assigned to the individual charities, which in turn furnish workers for the districts, retaining all of their collections, there being no proportionate sharing, no paid leaders or salaried officers. All of the 400 workers who belong to the league will be on the streets tomorrow, and they have been assured absolute police protection. The headquarters for the day will be in room 120 of the Auditorium hotel, telephone Wabash 7241.

The idea in having a general Tag day like this is to prevent thirty-six individual requests and to consolidate them into one big, far reaching appeal directed to all Chicago, from the humblest workingman to the multi-millionaire. "No contribution will be too small, only let every one give his mite," is the slogan of the day. The winter's demands upon the various charities are already being felt, and they will undoubtedly be greater than ever this year owing to the increased cost of living, so the appeal is being made doubly strong.

The harmonious way in which the league has worked all these years is really remarkable and truly commendable. It is a duty representative of nationalities. Regular meetings are held the first Tuesday morning in the month at the Auditorium hotel, with each of the thirty-six charities represented. A new charter to be adopted by the league must show proof that it has an unpaid board of managers, that it is organized for the aid of Chicago's poor children, that it has been in existence for two years, and has been endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

On the list of charities accepted for this year are:

- Bethesda Day nursery.
- Bethlehem creche.
- Bethlehem orphan home.
- Central Baptist orphanage.
- Charity alliance.

NEW YORK SOCIETY Fashion's Newest Wrinkles Seen at Piping Rock Races

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—There are seasons when whatever subject you start to treat just naturally turns into a dissertation on styles. I started to make a few remarks the other day about the warping nations, and I found myself three sentences along telling about how all the French men were wearing charming little blouses that fell outside the skirtband like a Russian blouse cut short. What I had meant to say was "that the French soldiers were so wonderfully patient in convalescence. You can deduce for yourselves what a chance this particular article has to be anything except a fashion number, with the rich and great as the models. They are holding something these days which is nothing more nor less than a fashion show, although the name of it is the Piping Rock races. I ran but to the last meeting, and it did not seem to me to be in any degree short of the fashion races in France of a few years ago, when the horsemans ran, while everybody watched the women. And these were professional models who wore the dresses of the big couturiers, while here American aristocracy disported itself in the gay plumage. Mrs. William K. Dick, who was Mrs. John Jacob Astor, was a radiant model in a jersey sweater suit of pale yellow with dark collar and cuffs and a muslin hat that sank down almost to her eyes. She wore yellow and black shoes with low heels. They say that sports are going to be pursued ardently all winter, from tobogganing to hunting, and that great suits are going to make up an important part of every wardrobe. When you consider that the nicest of them cost from $75 to $400 and that at least six of them will be required for complete smart costuming, you will easily see that the cost of living continues to go up—for those of course in no sense take the place of the former pieces necessary to every wardrobe. You cannot substitute one of them for evening, afternoon, or even outdoor tailored dresses. But to get back to the former Mrs. Astor. I have seen her looking beautiful always, but I never saw her looking happy before. And she is so radiant now. There was something about that big Astor mansion in Fifth avenue that did not become her. It gave her a dramatic background, certainly, but either she was too young or too unaffected or too indifferent to all that it represented in prestige and worldliness to fit into it. She showed up as something pensively sad and aged in the marble cold interior. In the outdoors the other day, beside her compact square, spectacled, healthy looking husband, she looked vastly more in place. After all can you think of a greater compliment to pay a girl than to say that, nothing becomes her as a setting like the out of doors? Black Taffeta and Furs. But to continue my hints on styles, black taffeta seems to be in the running for the fall. Miss Alice De Lamar had on one that was fearfully and wonderfully made. I should say that of a conservative figure it contained some two hundred yards of the stiff material. The skirt had two overskirts, and I will mention in a mild way that they stood out. You know how a little girl looks when she whirls. So looked Miss De Lamar. She wore fur with it, as did everybody with whatever else they had on. Mrs. E. Reeves Merritt wore linen and fur. Miss Mary Howitt wore chiffon and fur, and Mrs. Dwight Howland wore something that looked like pongee garnished with fitch.

Congregationalists to Commemorate Pilgrims' Landing.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

TODAY will be observed throughout the United States in Congregational churches an anniversary day. It will mark the beginning of three years' preparation for the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock, Mass., in 1620. The culmination of the tercentenary celebration will be in 1920.

The Rev. Hubert G. Herring, secretary of the national council, is secretary of the committee in general charge. State committees are also at work. The Rev. William E. Barton, pastor of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, is chairman of the Illinois state committee.

The Rev. George T. McCollum, superintendent of the Congregational conference of Illinois, and the Rev. R. W. Gammon, educational secretary of the interior, are also active in leadership.

The Rev. Thomas Nicholson of the Methodist Episcopal church, who is president of the Dry Chicago federation, will be introduced to the representatives of the churches and the temperance organizations at a luncheon on Monday at the Hotel La Salle.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Methodist Episcopal church, who is president of the Dry Chicago federation, will be introduced to the representatives of the churches and the temperance organizations at a luncheon on Monday at the Hotel La Salle.

Rev. Amary J. Haskins

The Rev. Amary J. Haskins will preach today in the Irving Park Methodist Episcopal church, North Kedzie avenue and Grace-st., beginning the nineteenth year of his pastorate.

Dr. Haskins is president of the Chicago Methodist ministers' meeting, which meets weekly, and will close a year of service in that capacity on Oct. 22. He is a graduate of Northwestern university in the classes of '91 and of Garrett Biblical institute in '93.

He received the degree of doctor of divinity from Northwestern university two years ago last June. When he became pastor of the Irving Park church in 1898 there was a property valued at $3,000, with a mortgage of $2,500.

Other ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church who begin today pastorates of considerable length are: T. P. Frost, First church, Evanston, fourteen years; J. S. Ladd, Thomas, Austin, eight years; E. L. Williams, Grace church, eight years; M. J. Magor, McCabe Memorial, seven years.

Archbishop G. W. Mundelein of the Roman Catholic church will dedicate today at 10:30 o'clock St. Jerome's church, Rogers Park. The Rev. Thomas F. Farrell is pastor.

The story is told in last week's North-Western Christian Advocate that the Rev. E. McKay, formerly pastor of the Diversey Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago, found a lost purse on the street of Los Angeles.

The man who helped President Taft to reduce his weight and increase his vitality is to be the speaker at the Sunday evening club in Orchestra hall this evening.

Dr. Barker started out to be a minister, having been educated for the purpose at the University of Chicago.

Andrew McLeish of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. and F. C. W. Parker, vocational secretary of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., will also have parts in the program.

The Knights of Columbus sent out letters last week to 3,500 members of the order, as a beginning in the active campaign to complete the work begun months ago to provide a home for boys.

Archbishop Mundelein when he first came to Chicago as the head of the Catholic church here. Collecting money to open a mission there and it was not often a minister finds the price of admission to the baseball games lying on the street in front of him.
