writes specialist because her Children won't eat what they should:

"Nearly all mothers struggle at some time with the problem of children's fussy appetites, and when this assumes the proportion of refusing nearly all good foods, it is indeed serious. Frequently, when other things fail, I suggest CREAMETTES, a tempting Macaroni product. You can serve it with melted buttor butter, or with vegetables, or even as a custard dessert and many other tempting dishes. CREAM-ETTES rank high in food value and may teach your child to cat new foods because of its taste appeal." (Two large packages at your grocer cost only 15 cents.)

Women Plan Fair Welcome for Scientists

The program of the scientific women of Chicago for participation in A Century of Progress will be reviewed tonight by a representative group of the women comprising the Medical, Dental and Allied Science Women's Association for A Century of Progress, Inc. That title is the only cumbersome thing about the alert organization that has placed itself prominently on the feminine map by its far-sighted, profound but entertaining schedule for the 1933 World's Fair.

More than a year ago they set to work. They haven't slighted the job for a single month. Their program is three-ply and versatile.

The scientific woman who presents herself at the headquarters of the organization is due to find its members equipped to provide her with the type of entertainment she desires.

Suppose she is an earnest soul who wants to improve her opportunities in Chicago, to visit- the famous and instructive ellnics or hospitals. Not only can she get definite advice about which to choose, but she will be instructed in detail what transportation to use, or, if she is sufficiently celebrated, transportation will be provided for her.

Suppose it's companionship the visitor craves. Then the efficient hostess on duty will see to it that a small luncheon party is organized, to which will be invited the particular women whose conversation and exchange of information would be most interesting and helpful to that individues ing and helpful to that individual. This eager hospitality will be dispensed from the hostess booth in the Social Science building, of which Dr. Annabel C. Test ich chairman. But it is only one-third of the total job of the scientific women. Another onethird is being administered under the chairmanship of Dr. Elolse Parsons, in space on the Enchanted, Island. Plans are complete for clinics to be held in this juvenile realm.

Dr. Lena Sadler is chairman of the third feature—the exhibit in the Hall of Science, across the lagoon from the Social Science building.
