jim,

i looked over my thousand word article and just couldn't get into sending it to you. i wrote and rewrote but there was a level of honesty that just wasn't emerging. it just wasn't real enough! so i sat and thought about what i really wanted to say and i am sending you the result. i don't offer any answers, just questions. who knows, it might get some minds working in the right direction.

also:

we are counting on orange county for part three of the upcoming celebration! there certainly is enough energy down there! this project could be a real shot in the arm to all the study groups - here is a project with a definite goal in sight and a limited time period to work in. a little bit of pressure always helps. . . well, almost always. i would really like getting together with whoever decides to help out on this project. once pat asks for members maybe a meeting of all part 3 participants could be called. please let me know when and i'll make the trip. let's keep the lines of communication open . . . PLEASE!

also: i really dug your group presentation.

*Love
